Relationship between Science and Spirituality

Basically, science is not different from spirituality. Science is “low-frequency” spirituality. Spirituality is infinite and is comprehended only in bits and pieces as they are released to the material world via few humans across the globe. When spirituality around a particular subject is revealed via a human outlet, and he is given the necessary knowledge support to ‘manifest’ it as revealed to him earlier on in his imagination, the output becomes either Science or Art. But the part which is not released and therefore stays unknown stays spiritual and remains “mystery”. As more and more of the mystery is demystified leading to discovery and creation of even newer technologies and creativities, more spirituality gets converted to Science and more Arts.

Spirituality is infinite “spectrum” of energies and frequencies. The finite part of this spectrum that we know and have successfully converted to technology and “tangibles” in the material is what we refer to as Science and Arts. This is why scientific laws are not different from spiritual laws as you would notice in the course of this training. Scientific laws are simply spiritual laws applied within the spectrum of matter and time which human can, as yet, relate with.

As Science and Arts are only reflection of spirituality (spirituality being the object of reflection), a good understanding of these can actually help us extrapolate into spirituality just as a good image view can tell us a lot about the object.

Law and Principle

Note that the explanation herein is neither based on dictionary meanings nor education as given by the world, but on knowledge as given by the spirit. It is given not as alternative to what you already know or can find cheaply elsewhere, but from a different point of view designed to help your understanding as well as your appreciation the things of the spirit.

So, generally speaking, while law seeks to punish you for doing something on the “wrong” side of the default state of things, principle on the other hand seeks to reward you for doing something benevolent. Hence we tend to use terms like ‘break the law’ and ‘keep principle’ to illustrate this.

For example, if you beat up your parents you may be considered to have broken the law and therefore attract the curse or penalty that’s associated with this wrong doing. But if on the other hand you had brought so much honor to your parents, you are considered to have kept or observed a principle and so attract the blessings or benefit that’s associated with your deeds.

If you keep a law, you are simply maintaining the status quo so nothing happens. However, if you look deeply at the law, you may be able to find the underlying principle around which the law operates. Once found, studied, tested and fully understood, it could be triggered to release the ‘blessing’ it carries or it could be replicated and applied in another area of life for some desired effect.

As example, let’s look at this scientific law called the law of inertia. It says that " Every object in a state of rest or uniform motion will remain in that state unless an external force acts on it." The underlying principle of this law simply means that to get something done (that is stop a moving object or move a resting object) you must DO the work of applying some force. For physical object (matter), you must apply physical force. For spiritual object (energy), you must apply spiritual force.

Meaning and Place of Spiritual Laws (also known as Universal Laws)

A Spiritual Law is a statement of fact, deduced from “spiritual research” and observations over 1000s of years and passed on from generation to generation, to the effect that a particular natural or scientific phenomenon always occurs in the material when certain conditions are altered in the spiritual.

Put simply, it says that ‘when you alter something in the spiritual by way of “practice of principle”, you get an equivalent effect in the material; action in the spiritual is followed by reaction in the material; whenever a CAUSE is triggered, some EFFECT follows.

Spiritual Laws always work, they never fail. So reliable are they that the entire universe exists and rests on them. The day even one of them fails, that’s the day the universe loses its balance and begins the collapse process.

How Spiritual Laws can Benefit Us?

So, if universal laws are so powerful, so effective, so dependable that even the universe can rely on it, then what is stopping man from exploring them deeper for his specific benefit? Nothing I guess.

First, let’s learn and try to comprehend these Spiritual Laws and how they operate. As we do so, a whole lot of confusing situations will resolve themselves and we shall instantly become lighter as burdens start to drop off our minds. For example, we shall come to see that the saying “God’s Will” simply means something that’s in accordance with (not working against) Spiritual Laws. You will also see that the claim that God can suspend law for man if He so pleases, cannot be correct because the reason He will be so pleased with man in the first place is because of man’s understanding of the same laws and his observance of the underlying principles.

A Deeper Insight into Spiritual Laws

Spiritual Laws are the pillars upon which our world rests. Just as the physical laws govern our seen material world, so do Spiritual Laws govern our unseen spiritual world from which our material world is formed.

In the physical, when you play with a baby and thrust it up in the air, it is guaranteed that the baby will return to your waiting hands. If you leave a book in shelf, it is guaranteed that it will forever remain there unless some force moves it from there. That you will get exactly the same amount of energy in opposite direction, as reaction to that which you put into action in one direction, is another guarantee. These are instances of physical laws.

Let us now attempt to gain insight into the workings of Spiritual Laws by considering computer programs and how they work. You get exactly the same effect every time you apply a particular function on a Software Application, because the programmer has written somewhere in the code that whenever that function is invoked, this particular action should take place.

Now imagine that the maker of the universe wrote a comprehensive program to govern the operation of all the universal forces, with the sole objective that they all work together in harmony to produce the stability-effect that He desires for His creation. For example, a line in the pseudo-code of the program might read: “whenever a man appears to shows love to his neighbor, find out if his love is genuine. If NO, do nothing. If YES, then return twice that ‘good’ to the DOER, within a gestation period of TIME under a similar circumstance as the event at which the love was shown”. This kind of code in God’s program becomes a law that affects everything in His creation – a Universal Law.

Above illustration only attempts to help you grasp the fact that Spiritual Laws are just as fundamental to the working of the universe as programs are to the working of the computer. Have you ever highlighted some text in your Word Processor, clicked on the bold button, and the text refused to go bold? Have you ever attempted to add up a range of cells in your Spreadsheet and got a wrong answer? If man’s program could be so dependable as to give the right result all the time, then how much more reliable could God’s own ‘codes’, Spiritual Laws, be?

As a good understanding of the Universal Laws will help you maximize their efficacy for your own good, let us now take a peep into some of these laws.

1. The Law of Divine Oneness

Everything in our universe is interconnected, forming one 'big picture'. Each of us is a very tiny part of that big picture. As an illustration, your body is made up of billions of cells. A cell cannot function independently but must work interconnectedly with other cells of the organ of the body to which it belongs, to help the organ perform its functions. Any cell that isolates itself from this 'big picture' and tries to function as stand-alone will no longer receive supply of nutrients from the body. It shall die and be cast away from the body. The body is one and all cells must recognize this law and work together as one. That way each cell will 'prosper' and live its full age.

This is same for the universe. The universe is one. Every person is a "cell" in the universe. You must begin to see yourself as part of everything around you. With this kind of awareness, you will realize that by yourself, you are too tiny and almost irrelevant for nature to care about just for your own selfish purpose. The only reason the universe would care about you would be that it sees you as means an end, not an end in itself.

So, for example, if you want a roof over your head, nature would more likely bring a house your way if you wanted it for say 2 or 3 persons than if you wanted it for just yourself. Your interconnection with the universe via the 2 or 3 for whom you care so much as to want to provide for, is more important to Mother Nature than your interest to own a house to yourself.

If you can remove selfishness from whatever you desire, you will have lines falling to you in pleasant places. But Universe is not corrupt and cannot be deceived, so how can you detach yourself from what you truly desire in a selfless manner so the universe does not see selfishness in your motive?

Unfortunately, there is no one-time action to achieving the above. You will need to be dissatisfied with religious and other people's explanation of "the truth" enough to embark in conscious search for the truth within yourself. You might find my articles at <https://deepanswer.org/blog/> useful on this pursuit.

2. Law of Vibration (Law of Attraction)

Everything moves inside itself, nothing ever stays the static. All things, including human are made of and consist of elements. The particles that make up these elements never rest but are in constant motion within the elements. Therefore, all things in the universe ranging from mighty planets to tiny grain of sand, are in constant vibration. Although these movements are not visible to the eye, some things vibrate very fast (high frequency) while other things vibrate not so fast (low frequency).

By the way, things exist in 2 forms: as matter or as energy. Nothing can be destroyed but things can be converted from one form to the other form. In creation, energy (unseen) in the spiritual is converted to matter (seen) in the material. In destruction or death, matter may be partly or fully converted back to energy and returned to the “store house” from where it came originally.

So, everything is energy including our thoughts. Law of Attraction is an offshoot of this law: vibrations of the same frequency resonate with each other, so like attracts like energy. Consistently focusing on a particular thought or idea can attract its vibrational match, wherever in the universe they may be.

If you can alter your energy vibration so that you ascend to a frequency that is same as the vibrational frequency of something else in the universe, then even if you are physically far away from that other thing, because of the resonance of your frequencies of vibration, you both actually belong together in the energy realm. It would only be a matter of time that you will both physically connect.

Application of the Law of Vibration

Like attract Like. Your body is constantly sending your vibration into the universe. Your vibration combs the entire universe, sieving through the cloud of billions of different frequency vibrations by other humans and elements of the universe. When it finds a similar vibration, they attract each other. With time, the material representation of that attracted energy will come to you. This way, you attract the kind of spouse, job, ideas, positive or negative energy people, any anything else that you deserve based on the kind of vibration you send out.

Thus a good person can only attract a good person. A good spirit will attract good health, happiness, and positive vibrations; on the other hand, an evil person will attract negativity such as diseases, and sadness. As a tree is known by its fruits, you can tell by what you attract, if you are radiating positive or negative vibrations.

In the same vein, a great business idea can attract the right resources to bring itself to life. Therefore, rather than giving all attention to looking for money to start that great idea of yours big, focusing on imaginations of the good life the business could bring to the entire community and the world at large could attract to you the resources that the business requires to come to life.

3. Law of Cause and Effect. This law says that for every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction. Every cause has an effect, and every effect has a cause. Be at cause for what you desire, and you will attract the effect. All thought is creative, in that they are always potential cause; so be careful what you think, for the effect could manifest. Matter (things in the material realm) converts to energy (things in the spiritual realm) and energy converts back to matter as they move between the two realms. Whatever we throw into nature (cause), nature would throw back at us (effect). The Law of Sowing and Reaping is an offshoot of this law, where sowing is a cause and reaping is the effect.

Example of this law in the material would be that the world drains the earth of its resources, but it suffers natural disaster in effect. We enjoy all the products of modernization, including automobiles, but suffer pollution and climate change resulting from depletion of the ozone layer. Deforestation for construction and furniture-making comes with the effect of massive erosion and extinction of wild life – hence the clamor for this new perspective that “We did not inherit the earth from our parents, but we are borrowing it from our children” in the hope of a positive attitudinal change in our ‘rush’ to deplete the earth of all its resources.

To apply this law to your life situation, contribute to building someone else’s house for example, and you are on your way to owning yours. Show sympathy and affection for the sick, and you are rebuking sickness in your life. Forgive those who sin against you and you shall be forgiven of your own sins. Give sacrificially, and nature shall show you mercy in return.

There are basically two ways to go around getting what you want: the first is by application of natural laws and the second is by application of Universal Law. You could either go all out to pursue your desire till you get it, or you could chose to attract your desire to yourself. The first method entails a lot of struggle, and in the end, it’s still not guaranteed that you will get that which you seek. This is the method commonly employed by the world. No wonder so many do not get results for their efforts!

The second method employs the combination of the Laws of Attraction and Cause and Effect: it simply requires you to consistently think and act on what you desire. In addition to this, continually stir the Cause of what you desire and as Effect, nature will push it your way; so you get your desire with minimal material effort. For example, the Effect of open door follows the Cause of knocking. The Effect of Getting follows the Cause of Giving, or else we end up with a burn on our palms or hole in our pockets if we get something from anyone without that person's full consent.

4. Law of Relativity

The Law of Relativity states that nothing is what it is until you relate it to something else. Point of view is determined by what the observer is relating to. The nature, value, or quality of something can only be measured in relation to something else. So, no particular person, experience, emotion or action is evaluated as good or bad until you look at it in comparison with something else.

For example, you may think you are poor, but perhaps that's because you have three rich uncles. By keeping this law in mind, you remain conscious of the fact that there are always multiple perspectives on anything that happens to you. Trying to slip into these alternate perspectives can make you more grateful, and can also show you where you can make improvements in life.

For good to exist, there must be evil otherwise how do you determine what good is. This means therefore that bad situations may not really as bad as they may seem. The situation might not even be bad at all, it's just your comparison that makes it look bad.

Sometimes, we are happy and content with our situation until we see someone in a seemingly better situation than ours, and then we are challenged to work harder to get to that level, bringing us to the reality that we can always be better than our best. On one hand, the Law of Relativity gives us reason to always show gratitude for our situation. On the other hand, it could be applied to help us to continually strive towards perfection.

5. Law of Polarity states that everything has an opposite: Hot-Cold, Light-Dark, Up-Down, Good-Bad. In the absence of that which you are not, that which you are is not.

Polar opposites make existence possible. If what you are not didn't coexist with what you are, then what you are could not be. Therefore, do not condemn or criticize what you are not.

We are all searching for happiness and success; individually, we go to various extents in this pursuit. But the Law of Polarity points us to the basic things to do in order to have success, happiness and all the good things of life.

If what you are not didn't coexist with what you are, then what you are could not be. This means that without poverty, there would be not riches. For there to be riches, there must be poverty. For light to have meaning there must be darkness. Same principle goes for good health and sickness; people for a cause and people against it. Reflect on this for a moment. If nature bestowed light upon you, what would you do with it in order to be useful to nature, hide your light, or seek darkness to light up? For as long as you keep giving light to darkness, your light will not diminish but will multiply because every light you release will be a seed sown; it will ultimately bring you harvest of more lights.

If you are in congruent with this analogy, then you can apply this principle to get whatever you want from nature. If you are seeking to be rich for example, riches cannot be if there was no poverty. Therefore your feelings towards poverty, even though that is not what you want, should not be animosity but kindness. Look for the home of poverty, visit him and treat him like you are rich; show him generosity.

If you want promotion, you cannot hate examinations; if you want success, you cannot hate failure; else you will be like one who claims to love another, but hates their origin. As you would give examination the importance and preparation it deserves in order to attain the promotion you desire, so also would you need to be patient with failures, as you learn the great lessons of success that they carry; so would you need to continually show sympathy to the poor in order to attain wealth and remain wealthy.

Some would generally prefer to spend long hours praying for solutions, rather than take a few minutes out to be the answer to someone else's prayer. They have not realized that God is more willing to bless us when He identifies us as river that He could use to 'flow' blessing on to others, than when He sees us as pond seeking blessings just for our own selfish selves. And we will have to demonstrate to God that we are the river kind of person, with the little that we already have. Just as in the pattern of the Lord's Prayer, so should it be said that 'because I have been a solution to another person's problem, Father please provide a solution to my problem'. In reality though, those who deserve to say this prayer would hardly need to say it because their (silent) prayers would have been answered even before they are said.

6. The Law of Compensation

Glaringly, some people are born into wealth. From childhood to adulthood, they enjoy the best of everything. They live in porche houses and have smooth access to all the good things of life including holidaying around the world. Yet some others are born into poverty, with barely enough resources to take them through basic education. To survive, they depend on leftovers by the rich. They work so hard but earn so little.

So, how come we say Nature is fair when it's 'evident' that the rich is favoured above the poor? How come we insist that Nature is incorruptible when it is apparent that some are naturally 'lucky' at the expense of others? What chances does the poor have in community where the rich and wealthy takes it all

Well, it is hard to accept but the rich deserves the riches they get while the poor attracts the poverty that comes to them. It's not as though the wealth of the poor was stolen off them and given to the rich. Nature is too incorruptible to allow that. Each person receives exactly that which he deserves – by his spiritual works. But if there are genuine cases of people who did get what they did not deserve, then the government of the universe (Nature) will invoke the Law of Compensation to set things right and maintain its equilibrium state.

If anyone, by force or by trick, came into wealth that he did not genuinely earn and therefore was not granted him, nature will ensure that person pays back every resource in due course, with all accruing interest. This payment comes in the form of suffering to the person. In the same vein, if anyone came into suffering that he did not attract or earn, then nature will ensure to compensate him if full, with the enjoyment equivalent of the undeserved suffering he was subjected to. This is the Law of compensation.

Now there is no more excuse not to continue to serve even a wicked master cheerfully, knowing that Nature's got your back by the Law of Compensation. Even if we served for years unpaid, still our full entitlements will come to us somehow when the season is right. Nature always ensures that.

Conclusion

When it was said that “heaven and earth may pass away, but my word cannot pass without accomplishing that for which it was sent” Spiritual Laws or Universal Principles is the word being referred to. It has never failed; as it worked in the beginning, so it’s working now and shall it ever work. The spiritual side of the equation cannot fail, whether it works instantly or takes a couple of years to come to manifestation.

However, if you believe that the results from your practice of above principles are being unrealistically delayed or not measuring up to your expectation, do let me know and I will be happy to look into your situation critically with a view to recommending a few more steps you could take for a bountiful harvest for your efforts.
